The Democratic Band Wagon
Traverses North Christian.

Two Thousand and Five Hundred
People Hear Music and Oratory
Up To Wednesday Night.

Crofton, Ky., Oct. 25.—The Democratic band wagon has split north-east Christian county wide open, traveling fifty miles in less than 60 hours and leaving behind it a trail of enthusiasm that will mean many votes for the ticket in November.

The crowds everywhere have been large and enthusiastic and after the first half day the weather has been perfect.

Monday morning the prospect was dreary enough. A steady rain was falling and there was a most discouraging outlook for a whirlwind tour over the hills and hollows of north Christian.

The band boys at Lafayette were true blue and telephoned at seven that they were coming rain or shine. The Committeemen on the route, Lee King at Dogwood, Dave Smith at Fruit Hill and Foster McCown at Bluff Spring, also telephoned that it would take a Galveston flood to dampen the order of the Democrats of their respective districts and that the band wagon must come rain or no rain.

The band did not arrive until eleven o'clock and it was nearly one before everything could be made ready for the State. Col. W. R. Howell and Ben C. Boyd were sent ahead, before noon, to cancel the appointment at Dogwood and hold the crowd at Fruit Hill.

The band in the two light wagonettes, and followed by the commissary department in a road wagon, engineered by Geo. Green, Jr., made the trip over a very muddy road to Dogwood, eight miles, in two hours. Here a stop of ten minutes was made. The crowd had been dismissed, but about 50 people still remained. These were given a couple of tunes and after a brief explanation by Mr. Meacham of the change in the program, a forced trip was made four miles further to Fruit Hill. Here Col. Howell was just concluding an hour's speech to a crowd of 150 people. Mr. Meacham followed with a ten minutes speech and after music and a good rest, the journey to Bluff Springs, 5 miles further, was resumed. This point was reached at 6 o'clock and the party of 20 men had just enough time to pitch camp, eat supper and feed the horses before dark. The people had already begun to arrive and by 6:30 o'clock 300 persons were on hand and after the band had played for half an hour the speaking began. Judge Thos. P. Cook and Ashby Edmunds came down for the night meeting and A. Wilgus and J. C. Duffy arrived from Hopkinsville, and became permanent members of the party. Judge Cook led off with an hours speech, Col. Howell followed with a 30 minutes "hot number," and then came Meacham and Duffy with short speeches. The meeting broke up at 9:30 and the boys scattered out for the night, closing the first half day with two regular speakings to an aggregate of nearly 500 hearers. The good people of Bluff Springs opened their homes to the campaigners and on Tuesday morning they all come together at the Red Bridge for the second day. The weather was all that could be desired and the roads were rapidly drying out. Full of hope for the day, the band wagons completed the long drive of 8 miles to Haley's store over a very rough road by 11 o'clock, arriving only an hour late. Howell, Boyd, Wilgus and Duffy had been sent on ahead and held the crowd. At the foot of Esq. Geo. N. Johnson's hill, the worst road on Pond River, a stop was made to rest the horses and standing on a little bridge the boys played a stirring tune that caused a drove of cattle to come bellowing down the hillside, looking for the strange melody that waked the echoes for the first time in this end of Christian county. Just before Haley's mill was reached, a school at Poplar Grove was passed and the teacher gave recess to allow the children to see the strange procession. A stop was made and the band went in side the yard and played some of its choicest music. Then leaving a delighted crowd of school children they hurried on down the hill to find 150 people assembled and waiting to be entertained.

After some music Mr. Meacham gave the meeting a start and introduced Mr. Duffy for a half hour's talk.

This young man is developing into a most pleasing and effective speaker. His speech was followed by another fine speech from Col. Howell. This was in the Colonel's best vein and made a fine impression.

Before breaking up, a club was organized with 57 members, who promised to put in their best licks for the ticket until No. 6. Mr. John E. Davis was elected President. This was one of the best meetings held.

A drive of 6 miles was made to Johnson's store by 4 o'clock. Two stops were made, one at Cold Creek to eat dinner and again on the highest hill in the county, where some ladies and children were assembled at a house by the roadside. Here the band played to the great delight of the little crowd.

At Johnson's Store about 50 people were still waiting, though the hour for the speaking was long past. A short stop was made and after some music Mr. Duffy made a short speech. Here Mr. Jap N. Sisk met the party and took it in charge. The night meeting was held at No. 5 School house near his house and proved to be the best meeting of the series. A crowd of 400 was on hand and there was a regular feast of oratory. More speakers came out from Hopkinsville and Jno. B. Brasher, of Hopkins, also was on hand. Mr. T. C. Hanbery, who was last year a Brown Democrat, was the first speaker. He led off in a fine talk that put everybody in a good humor. After him Jno. B. Brasher, Jas. B. Allensworth and the inimitable Howell all made fine speeches.

Tuesday night the party of 22 men and 10 horses were taken care of by Messrs. J. N. Sisk, J. B. Sharber and L. R. Ray, all within walking distance of the church where the meeting was held. These gentlemen feasted the boys on the fat of the land. In addition to the delightful edibles, the sound dozen at Mr. Sisk's were given a musical concert until after eleven o'clock. Mr. Sisk is a fine performer on the violin and his three children are members of his family "band." Claude plays the guitar, little Mabel the parlor organ and the oldest daughter, Miss Eva is a violinist of great promise. Some of the band boys helped out at times and there was a feast of music that was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Everybody was up and ready to move by 8 o'clock Wednesday morning and the drive of 3 miles to White Plains was made in an hour. For a mile or more the road ran along Pond river, the county line, and when the party crossed over the bridge into Hopkins they were met by a delegation of horsemen. A mile further another crowd came up and a school with 85 pupils waving flags was lined up by the road with their teachers, Misses Ray and Teague, at the head. Here the horsemen were increased to near 100 and a parade a half mile long entered the town and a photographer stopped the procession long enough to take a picture of the band and school children at the head of it. Then the march was continued to the grove surrounding the church where the seats had been taken out under the trees. Here 500 people quickly gathered and the meeting was touched off at 9:30, promptly on time. Mr. Duffy spoke first and made such a fine speech that a lady in the audience presented him with a bouquet. Then Mr. Howell was introduced and the bandwagons left, leaving him to follow in a buggy. This was a grand meeting and John Brasher, Rufus Teague and Dr. Moore made the visitors feel welcome from the time they crossed the line. Mr. Brasher announced that he would inaugurate a similar campaign at White Plains next Monday afternoon.

The drive to Empire was a 10-mile journey, hard and tiresome, but the wagons whirled in ten minutes, only to find that they had been bailed for noon instead of 3 o'clock and 250 people had waited until 2 o'clock and some home. After some music, Howell was left at Empire to speak to the miners at 7 o'clock and the rest reached Crofton at 5 o'clock, dusty and tired.

Here Jno. M. Dulin, the old reliable wheelhorse, and Will Martin, the local committeeman, took them in charge having provided entertainment for men and beasts. Several new recruits from Hopkinsville came in by night and the 7:30 meeting was a rouser. Mr. Duffy opened with an hour's speech and it was a tip-top effort, the first speech of that length he had made. By 8:30 Howell came in from Empire and put in some of his best licks. The two meetings were great successes and the attendance brought the total for three days up to about 3,000. The canvass of the eastern side of the railroad wound up here in a blaze of glory and a flood of melody and oratory. The band boys are having a great time. Newton Roper, one of the cornelists, had to return home from Haley's Mill, but there are still eleven fine fellows making the round. Fred Gilbert and Will Mitchell are from Hopkinsville and the others are from Lafayette. E. J. Roper is leader.

Mr. J. M. Dulin, who has been the guide and pilot since Monday afternoon will spend the week with the boys and has endeared himself to every one by his thoughtful attentions. He knows every hog path on Pond river and can come very near telling who lives in every house passed.

This morning we start into the Trade Water country for two days, making six appointments and reaching home Friday night.

Died Of Cancer.

Mr. Smith Hayes, a well known and much respected citizen, died at his home one mile east of the city Monday afternoon, after a long and painful illness, of cancer of the face.

The malignant growth made its appearance about five years ago and had eaten away one side of his face. While he had been a constant sufferer he was only confined to his bed a few weeks.

Mr. Hayes was about eighty years old and leaves several children. The funeral was preached at his late residence Tuesday afternoon by Elder H. D. Smith and the interment took place in Hopewell.
